OTA response to Dr Golly & The Experts Podcast

Occupational Therapy Australia is aware of recent conversations on the “Dr Golly and The Experts” Podcast, where Em Rusciano shared her lived experience relating to her son’s therapy.

We are deeply committed as a profession to a practice focused on recognising and valuing individual differences and accepting and supporting people to live as their authentic true selves.

Over 1,000 Occupational Therapists are currently assembled in Cairns at our national conference, where we are sharing knowledge and evidence based practice, and hearing from people with lived experience about neurodiversity affirming practice.

About Occupational Therapy Australia

Occupational Therapy Australia (OTA) is the peak for occupational therapists. As Australia's professional association for occupational therapy, OTA fosters evidence-based practice, enables lifelong learning and promotes the future of occupational therapy. OTA exists to support occupational therapists to support their community and enable people to live their best lives.
